

MAKERS OF TOMORROW

FOR THE HIGH FLIERS

British Motor Heritage established in 1975 is the largest organization of its type in the world. It came into inception to support owners and the marketplace by putting genuine components for classic British cars back into manufacture, using original tools wherever possible. With access to unparalleled knowledge, authentic production information and original drawings and patterns, the company manufactures previously unobtainable body parts for British classic cars.

CARS AND MORE

British Motor Heritage owns the Heritage trademark together with MOWOG, Nuffield, Standard, Stanpart and Steelcraft marks and the Heritage Motor Parts brand, and is licensed by the trademark owners to use MG, Mini, Austin-Healey, Triumph, Rover, Austin, Morris, Riley, Vanden Plas, Wolseley, Special Tuning and BMC trademarks and logos.

Through its approval process, it is responsible for the licensing of vehicle, merchandise and publishing products and outlets using the non-current trademarks and logos originally owned by vehicle manufacturers. Now for the first time, it opens up an array of licensing opportunities for the licensees in India.
